The opening quotations were a frac-

The feature of the speculation was American Tobacco, which rose 2% on heavy purchases, and then without any great pressure to sell broke ered 2% and fell back I and closed with a rally of 1 per cent., being 4 below yesterday's final gale.

During the hour before noon, the general market railied. The active list made a fractional advance, but before noon a depression set in, which continued but with slight interruption during the entire afternoon and the market closed generally heavy at a decline on the day with a loss ranging from 4s to 1 per cent

Chicago Gas, after a loss of ¼ at 1 the opening, rose 1, reacted ¾ and closed at a recovery of ⅓, which represents its gain on the day.

The heavy advance was due to purchases induced by a report that the quo warranto case would not be decided in favor of the company. The decision had not been announced up to the close of business, but it is ead, the attorney-general of Illinois has arrived at a conclusion and will shortly make it known. When he does the shares are likely to move sharply in either direction no matter whether the result may be favorable or unfavorable to the gas company.

Disgraceful Resolutions Presented and Put Through with a Ruar—The Political Tricksters Fully Answered on Every Point by Mr. Rawlings—Personalities Indulged In.

A meeting of the Laboring Men's association was held at the Galena block, on State street, last evening. It was a turbulent gathering, and the speeches, with the exception of that made by Mr. Rawlings, were of a decidedly anarchistic style. Notwithstanding the distinct agreement that politics should be kept entirely out of this organization, last night's meeting was a bitterfly partisan affair, the observable association peddied Populist literature association peddied Populist literature association peddied Populist literature. politics should be kept entirely out of this organization. last night's meeting was a bitterly partisan affair, the object in view, apparently being to make some cheap political capital for the Republicans out of the industrial army episode at Ogden.

At 8 o'clock sharp E. W. Reese called the meeting to order, Chairman Carter being absent. After a few preliminary remarks by Mr. Reese, as he was about to ask the pleasure of the assemblage Chairman Carter appeared upon the scene and without a prelude introduced the following resolution:

Whereas, Governor Caleb W. West, of this territory, without authority and withstarted up. The army which has gone marching on has gained the respect of the world by being orderly, consistent, manly. Now let us learn a lesson from them, fire the political skeletons out of our closets, draw the veil from over their faces, and, sirs, I pledge you that should occasion offer, put myself and Chairman Carter and the two Populists in the scale and see who is wunting. Let our motto be, 'Peace and good will to all mankind.' Gentlemen, I thank you."

At the conclusion of Rawsings' speech, which was delivered in the most ap-sealing tones. Reese attempted to respond with personalities, but his effort was promptly "sat down" upon and the neeting adjourned.

The continuous growth and increase in number of the polypl so obstructed the next passage that for two years I could not breathe through my nose at all, a very distressing condition, as my throat would become harse and dry from constant breathing through my mouth, especially when askeen.

This had been my condition for years with but little change. I tried various treatments and a number of different physicians, but found no relief until I placed my case with Dr. De Monco.

My heatring and sense of smell is now perfectly matural, discharges from the nose is greatly relieved and I breathe through my nose with ease and comfort, thereby relieving my throat of that harsh, dry feeling. My general health is very much improved.

In the removal of the entire thirteen polypi i experienced no pain whatever, and no masesthetic was administered. Everything pertaining to the operation was much pleasanter than I anticipated.
